West In Her Eye Poems

The West in her Eyes [Unwelcome by Mary Elizabeth Coleridge 1861-1907] We were young, we were merry, we were very very wise, And the door stood open at our feast, When there passed us a woman with the West in her eyes, And a man with his back to the East. Oh, still grew the hearts that were beating so fast, The loudest voice was still.

The West In Her Eyes Poem by Dr Ian Inkster - Poem Hunter

When there passed us a woman with the West in her eyes, And a man with his back to the East. O, still grew the hearts that were beating so fast, The loudest voice was still. The jest died away on our lips as thy passed, And the rays of July struck chill. The cups of red wine turned pale on the board, The white bread black as soot.

Look at the beauty in her eyes, a glow that shines like the sunrise. Her smile opens up the cloudy skies, her laughter delights butterflies. The ocean greets her as she passes by. Her gorgeous toes leave their mark, saying goodbye. Gentle breeze through her hair, she walks elegantly while astonished eyes all stare. Rosy cheeks cover her face.

First at one, and then its fellow, just as light and just as yellow;
There are many now—now one—now they stop and there are none; What intenseness of desire, in her upward eye of fire! With a tiger-leap half way, now she meets the coming prey, Lets it go as fast, and then, has it in her power again: Now she works with three or four, like an Indian Conjuror; Quick as he in feats of art, far ...

She dwelt among the untrodden ways by William Wordsworth ...

The eye frustrated sees the path is darkened, It looks behind, and now the gate is fastened. And now within itself the heart's imprisoned As if it had never opened out: unknown Those blessed hours beside her, when it shone As bright as all the stars
the heavens showed: And remorse, reproach, and irritation, care

Goethe, Johann Wolfgang von (1749-1832) - Selected Poems

But parade about his pretty face his handsome eyes of blue. Go his gad-about father urged him. Get a patron who is rich. Lie with many maidens, but don't let your slovenly habits twitch. His mother rolled her eyes. Her ex was such a Tom! Ladies like a man who uplifts them she said, "So just go fawn." He's so handsome! The felines twittered.

In the third stanza, Donne and his lover are looking into each other's eyes. What Donne sees is his own image reflected in her eyes, just as she sees her own image in his eyes. The two hemispheres are each others eyes, which are worlds unto themselves, and better than the actual world (earth) because they are not cold in the north or primitive in the west.

The glory of the day was in her face, The beauty of the night was in her eyes. And over all her loveliness, the grace Of Morning blushing in the early skies. And in her voice, the calling of the dove; Like music of a sweet, melodious part. And in her smile, the breaking light of love; And all the gentle virtues in her heart.
